UPSC Cadre Allocation Policy - Five Zones

The UPSC Cadre Allocation Policy - Five Zones, introduced in 2017, divides all state and joint cadres of the All India Services into five geographical zones. Candidates are required to rank these zones and choose cadre preferences within each zone during the allocation process.

| PSC Cadre Allocation Policy - Five Zones |                             |
|------------------------------------------|-----------------------------|
| Zone                                     | State Cadres / Joint Cadres |

|          |                                                                   |
|----------|-------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Zone-I   | AGMUT, Himachal Pradesh, Uttarakhand, Punjab, Rajasthan, Haryana  |
| Zone-II  | Uttar Pradesh, Bihar, Jharkhand, Odisha                           |
| Zone-III | Gujarat, Maharashtra, Madhya Pradesh, Chhattisgarh                |
| Zone-IV  | West Bengal, Sikkim, Assam, Meghalaya, Manipur, Nagaland, Tripura |
| Zone-V   | Telangana, Andhra Pradesh, Karnataka, Tamil Nadu, Kerala          |

Insider-Outsider Ratio

- Each state cadre follows a 2:1 Outsider-Insider ratio to ensure balanced administration.
- Only one-third (33.3%) of officers in a cadre can be Insiders (from the same home state).
- The remaining two-thirds (66.7%) are allotted as Outsiders from other states.
- Insider allotment is considered only if the candidate ranks their home-state zone as first preference.
- This rule promotes national integration, neutrality, and wider administrative exposure.

Factors Influencing UPSC Cadre Allocation

The factors which influence the UPSC Cadre Allocation have been highlighted below. A candidate should be aware of these factors before filing their cadre preference.

- Merit: Higher-ranking candidates in the UPSC CSE have a better chance of getting their preferred cadres, as allocation is primarily based on rank in the final merit list.
- Preference: Candidates submit a list of preferred cadres during the allocation process, and these choices are considered while assigning their service postings.
- Vacancy and Reservation: The number of available positions in each cadre, along with state-wise reservation policies and home-state quotas, affects the final allocation of candidates.
